

May 5, 2005
For Immediate Release

South River Technologies Featured on World Business Review

Program will Air on CNBC & Bravo Network

Annapolis, MD – May 5, 2005 – South River Technologies (SRT) announced today their upcoming feature on Alexander Haig’s World Business Review. The program will air on the Bravo network on Tuesday, May 10th at 7am ET, 6am CT. In addition, the program will air in west coast markets on CNBC on Thursday, May 12th at 11pm PT.

According to World Business Review, Executives were selected for their expertise in their respective areas, and because they are leaders in their fields. Michael Ryan, SRT’s Co-Founder and CEO, is interviewed about SRT’s market focus, product capabilities and customer successes. The program outlines cost-effective solutions available from SRT to efficiently handle everyday business file collaboration and the programs available for service providers to license SRT’s unique technologies.

“This is a great opportunity for SRT to connect with a broader audience,” claims Ryan. “SRT is rapidly growing and continues to focus on the importance of providing its customers with reliable, easy-to-use solutions that solve real business problems.”

About South River Technologies

South River Technologies, headquartered in Annapolis, Maryland, develops Internet file management software that is used for file collaboration, website management and shared access. SRT’s unique client technology creates an instantly familiar interface by integrating seamlessly into the Windows Operating System. Founded in 1996, South River Technologies directly sells and markets Windows based utilities and licenses its technologies to Independent Software Vendors and online service providers.

###

For more information, press only:

Kevin Bittorie

(410) 266-0667 ext. 105

Kevinb@SouthRiverTechnologies.com