South River Technologies Offers Hosted File Collaboration

GroupDrive^{net} Reduces Strain on IT Departments

Annapolis, MD – September 27, 2005 – South River Technologies announced today that it has launched the GroupDrive^{net} hosted file collaboration service. GroupDrive^{net} is a business class hosted service for securely collaborating on files from multiple locations. Files are stored on the GroupDrive^{net} server, ensuring that users always have the most current version of a file.

GroupDrive^{net} can be accessed through a Virtual Drive interface, enabling users to save files directly to the service from within any application on their Windows desktop. Users can share files and folders with other users and can email links to the files rather than sending bulky email attachments.

“GroupDrive^{net} has provided an easy, intuitive interface for our end users, as well as secure transmission and storage,” explained GroupDrive^{net} subscriber Ed Khundmiri, President of GMA Technologies, Inc. “We are able to accomplish all of this without using our internal IT resources.”
